The Fund returned 1.2% in October which was another strong month for share markets with New Zealand, United States and European markets rising 1.9%, 2.3% and 2.5% respectively. Share markets rose on investor optimism for continued economic growth, strong company results and lower central bank cash rates. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand reduced the official cash rate by 0.5% to 2.5% and the US Federal reserve reduced its US cash rate by 0.25%.

Top performing companies during the month included US semiconductor company Micron (+33.8%), Google parent company Alphabet (+15.7%), UK bank Group NatWest (+12.0%) and UK utility SSE plc (+10.0%). Micron is benefiting from strong demand for its memory chips which are needed for Artificial Intelligence which combined with strong pricing has led to large increases in profitability. Technology giant Google delivered a strong earnings result with revenue growing 16% helped by strong demand for its AI search products and its AI model Gemini. NatWest benefited from a strong result as its simplification and efficiency efforts continue to drive improved profitability. During the month we added to our holding in US software company Salesforce which we believe is attractively valued and has the opportunity to use AI to accelerate its revenue growth.

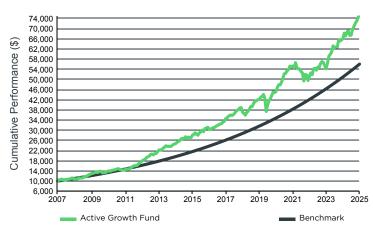

The medium-term outlook for shares remains supported by the potential for economic support in many countries through lower interest rates, increased government spending and strong investment in AI infrastructure, defence and cloud computing. Risks include relatively high company valuations, investor exuberance and the potential negative impacts of tariffs on economic growth, inflation and interest rates. The share price performance of individual companies within the market remains very volatile with some large moves, negative and positive. This volatility is creating opportunities for active management gains. The strategy of the Fund remains active and to concentrate investment into companies where we are best rewarded for risk.
