The Fund returned 1.0% last month, bringing the one-year return to 8.9%. The Fund has delivered positive returns each month since March. Whilst such a string of gains is not unusual it does reflect some strong tailwinds from positive equity and bond markets.

Returns last month were boosted by increased optimism around artificial intelligence, sending related stocks higher. The Fund benefited through holdings in technology companies Nvidia (+7.1%), TSMC (+21.3%) and Google (+14.2%).

NZ assets rallied last month as weaker second quarter GDP data boosted expectations of interest rate cuts from the RBNZ. Accordingly, NZ bonds outperformed, helping the Fund as we have remained heavily exposed to these assets.

NZ shares also rallied, with real estate developer Precinct Properties (+6.6%), infrastructure investment company Infratil (+8.7%) and fuel import terminal Channel Infrastructure (+12.7%) highlights last month. The NZ dollar fell against the Australian dollar and the Fund has largely closed its underweight NZ dollar position into this move.

The Fund recently invested in gold which paid off last month as the metal rallied more than 10%, also sending our gold mining stocks higher.

The fundamental outlook remains reasonable, with supports to the global economy from easier monetary and fiscal policy. Performance and valuations in part of the equity market suggest signs of excessive optimism. But we continue to find good investment opportunities so are not too concerned at this stage. However, it would be prudent to remember that markets can deliver surprises, something many investors are not currently prepared for.
