September was another eventful month in fixed income markets. Government bond yields moved higher (prices lower) across the board as inflation pressures remained elevated and offshore central banks in countries including the US and UK indicated they may tighten monetary policy sooner than previously expected. Most notably, the US Federal Reserve indicated that an announcement on the tapering of asset purchases could come as soon as November, and perhaps more surprisingly for markets, could be complete by mid-2022. Corporate bonds had a more mixed month, with pockets of outperformance in US and European investment grade.

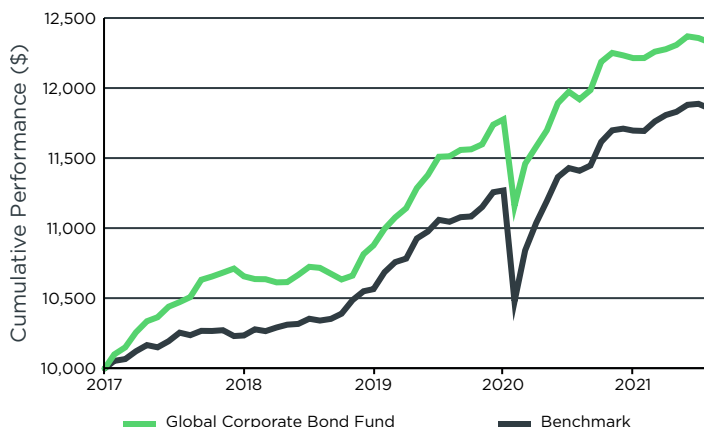

The Fund returned -0.2% in the month. It outperformed its benchmark by a small amount thanks in part to its below neutral interest rate exposure, the magnitude of which was reduced during the month as government bond yields moved higher. The Fund was active in primary markets where it bought bonds in new issues from companies including Nordea (Swedish bank), Woolworths (Australian supermarket) and ANZ Bank New Zealand.

Looking forward, we remain constructive on corporate bonds as global economic growth continues to underpin company balance sheets; albeit inflationary pressures, ongoing risks from Covid and the potential reduction of monetary and fiscal stimulus may keep market volatility elevated in the near term. The Fund maintains a below neutral allocation to the weakest parts of the high yield market and below neutral interest rate positioning to cushion against the potential impact a move higher in interest rates may have on bond returns.
