The Fund fell 1.2% in March in what was an extremely volatile month for share and bond markets. Markets initially came under pressure on the prospect of sharper rate rises from central banks. However, rate concerns reversed as the markets' concerns shifted to US regional banks and the potential for tighter lending conditions. The prospect of lower rates helped global shares which ended up 1.0% for the month. Returns from New Zealand and Australian share markets were largely flat. Within share markets, technology companies performed strongly whilst financial and resource companies fell sharply in response to contagion from the failure of Silicon Valley Bank in the US. The underperformance of financials (including a small holding in Silicon Valley Bank), lower weight to growth companies and defensive positioning of the Active Growth Fund led to a disappointing return for the month.

Key positive company performers were large cap US technology companies including Microsoft (+15.6%), Alphabet (+15.2%) and Amazon (+9.6%) and Australian drug development company Neuren Pharmaceuticals (+84.2%). Technology companies benefited from a flight to safety as investors reduced holdings in financials and more cyclical companies. Neuren rose following US regulatory approval for its drug which treats Rett syndrome - a rare neurological disorder. Neuren will receive significant revenue from this drug and also has potential upside from drugs under development. During the month the Fund added holdings in Meta, Visa and Apple, reflecting their dominant market positions and strong balance sheets.

The short-term outlook for share markets remains uncertain, with the prospect that higher interest rates and tighter lending conditions will slow future economic and company earnings growth. Positives for shares include the prospect of inflation rates falling, China reopening and lower energy prices in Europe. Given the uncertain backdrop and relatively high share market valuations, the Fund retains a lower weight to shares and a higher weight to cash and company bonds (fixed income) than normal. The Milford investment team remains active to isolate attractive company investments which have strong medium-term risk and return prospects.
