Last month the Fund returned 0.4%, bringing the one-year return to 8.2%. Global markets continue to be roiled by US government policy. This is creating opportunities for us to shift positions around, helping cushion volatility and ultimately delivering better long-term returns.

Given the risks, the Fund has held very defensive positions in recent months. This helped the Fund almost completely avoid the volatility in global share markets during the month. It also helped deliver overall positive returns from the month and hold onto those gains over the last couple of years. The Fund's share exposure was very much reduced coming into the month.

The weakness during the month did allow for some reinvestment at lower levels. The positive performance came predominantly from bonds, as well as low-risk company shares (such as utility companies). The Fund has had increased exposure to bonds, particularly in NZ and the US as we thought these economies were the weakest relative to market expectations. Subsequent rallies in US bonds have allowed us to reduce this position towards the end of the month.

The global investment backdrop is shifting. In the medium term, we are navigating a slowing in economic growth, particularly in the US. Longer-term, the notion of US exceptionalism is coming into question, including from an investment perspective. These shifts are providing plenty of opportunities for active, multi-asset funds to profit from these changes. A shifting investment landscape can be unsettling, but we think the Fund can continue to deliver solid medium-term returns as we navigate these markets.

1. The Fund does not have a performance benchmark, hence a market index has been included for comparison purposes. See the Statement of Investment Policy and Objectives for more details on the market index. The market index is a blend of indices that represent the Fund's neutral asset allocation. Note the Fund's investment strategy is designed to achieve its objective, which may mean that at times, the returns of the market index may not be an appropriate measure. 2. After the Base Fund Fee but before tax. 3. The yield to maturity is not an indicator of future return, but reflects the current yield to maturity of the fund's underlying holdings (before tax and after the base fund fee). 4. Where applicable, the Base Fund Fee includes an estimate of non-related underlying fund charges. 5. The Total Fund Fees comprise the Base Fund Fee and any estimated Performance Fee. Please refer to the Product Disclosure Statement for more information as to how these are calculated. 6. Please note past performance is not a guarantee of future returns.
